VIOLIN THIEF IS HANDED $80 FINE

Kostalnek, Caught in Chicago,
Let Off Easy Upon Returning Goods.

Having already served nearly a month in the county jail awaiting trial and having returned all stolen property, Lewis Kostalnek, alias Waller Krueger, age 30, was let off with a fine of $40 and costs, total of $80.70, by Judge H. C. MacLean late Monday afternoon. Robert J. Cunningham made a place for leniency and the fine was paid by Kostalnek's brother.

Upon motion of District Attorney S. G. Dunwidde the original grand larceny complaint against the defendant was amended to be less severe, charging only petty larceny of a theft amounting to less than $100. Kostalnek then pleaded guilty to the amended complaint, the fine was paid and the brothers returned to Chicago together.

So is written the last chapter of events following a theft at the home of Otto Schoenrock, 325 Fourth avenue, 13 months ago, when Kostalnek, who was then Krueger, left suddenly, taking with him a concert violin and a case of valuable embroidered robes. He told authorities Monday he took the articles because he believed Schoenrock was indebted to him for $10. All the articles were recovered by the defendant's attorney this week, probably in Chicago, and were returned to the Schoenrock home Tuesday.

Kostalnek recently completed a nine month term in the house of correction at Chicago on another charge—receiving stolen goods. Upon his release there he was brought back here after considerable trouble on the part of the police department in securing extradition papers and making one fruitless journey.

NEW BRITISH PLANE RISES STRAIGHT UP, DESCENDS GENTLY

(By Associated Press)
London—Great Britain has solved the helicopter problem through efforts of Louis Brennan, the war inventor.

The ministry experts succeeded in launching the helicopter, which is an airplane that flies straight upward at the Farmborough aerodrome, using a machine which had undergone tests under the direction of Brennan.

The machine rose vertically, hovered at a height of 40 feet, descended gently and landed safely, proving the feasibility of the gyroscopic principle, which gives the direct upward flight.

No attempt was made to test the machine for lateral flight, but, according to Brennan, this will be easy. Experiments in lateral flying will be made in the near future.

The machine has been stationed at a government aerodrome, to be guarded day and night. Only six engineers and designers know the mystery of the helicopter's construction.

U. S. PROGRAM FOR NAVY AGREED UPON

Others Must Give Up Equivalent of Every Item Discarded.

By DAVID LAWRENCE.
Copyright 1921 by Janesville Gazette.

Washington.—America's program for limitation of naval armament has been practically agreed upon. The details remain to be shaped—that is, planning witness, Mrs. Cora Humphrey, was found not guilty of assault and battery. It took the jury a half hour to reach a verdict against the state and come to a conclusion.

First, for every naval item given up by the United States there shall be an equivalent given up by other naval powers.

Second, the present ratio of naval strength shall be maintained, that is, the same, that is, the same.

Third, the British, having accepted the principle of equality with the United States, the disparity in strength between the two navies shall at least not be increased.

Fourth, the present limitation of armament is held to mean that all operations shall be permitted to finish the building programs which they have already authorized.

"Reduction of armament" is held to mean that vessels still in commission but growing obsolete shall be scrapped and the building reduced by an agreement not to replace them, but to economize by eliminating the expense of keeping up old vessels.

Replacement Understanding.

Fifth, a definite understanding by all powers as to exactly what is meant by the term "replacement" with respect to vessels now in first class condition but which may eventually become inferior in value to new types of naval craft which may be designed in the future.

Sixth, in considering naval strength, there shall be included merchant marine and all auxiliary vessels which can be possibly converted into war ships. The number of gunners and men in bases fortified and equipped which could be used in naval operations. In reducing armament expense, it is essential to consider the millions of dollars which are spent annually to maintain naval bases and repair stations at remote points. This question is most acute in connection with possible naval conflict in the Pacific where bases are quite as important as the number of naval vessels available for a theoretical war.

The foregoing principles, worked out by our naval experts, have been given to the American delegation consisting of Secretary Hughes, Senators Lodge and Underwood and Senator Root. There are some basic ideas but no drawn up which will take care of all contingencies.

It is up to the four members of the American delegation to determine just how far each principle can be applied. The navy is really presenting alternative plans. One plan may be predicated on a diplomatic settlement of certain disputes in the Far East. Another plan may be predicated on an absolute agreement with reference to fortifications. The navy is furnishing all its ideas to the American delegation, relying upon the latter to use those principles as the discussion develops.

Won't Satisfy Public.

Thus far it would seem as if the naval men would like to see limitation carried out literally by permitting the completion of existing programs but many of them realize that this will not satisfy American public opinion which has hoped the conference would not merely bring about an equilibrium as between navies but which would actually reduce the annual expense.

Reduction of armament involuntarily becomes the objective and the real problem of the naval experts is to evolve a plan which will reduce expenses of maintaining the superfluous parts of a navy without altering its fighting strength.

When the American program, however, is finally developed after the discussions have already begun, it would not be surprising to see the American delegation feel its way toward further reductions of expense even presenting proposals for radical cutting of naval programs now under construction. This is at this time merely conjecture.

Plan Moderate Program.

The American delegation is preparing a moderate program to lay before the conference, hoping eventually to modify and still further reduce expense.

The navy department considers its function to keep the American delegation advised as to how far the navy can be reduced consistent with domestic safety.

But the American delegation which has the responsibility of making America's pitch at the conference, with full assurances and explicit agreements concerning the willingness of the other powers to make equivalent reductions in expense. The conference will not be a single nation's affair. It depends for success on co-operation. America will not limit her armament alone, nor will she reduce it alone.

All must agree to equivalent reductions which are so definitely described as to leave no room for international misunderstanding. That's the trend of policy in the preliminary discussions which now are in progress.

THE POINT OF VIEW.

His friends say: "What a breezy personality." His enemies say: "What an awful blow."—Wayside Tales.

50 Percent Wealthier Than State Average, Figures Show.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE) Lake Geneva—Every person in Walworth county is 50 per cent wealthier than the average resident of the state of Wisconsin. While Walworth has only one ninety-second of the population of the state, it contains one third of the property.

These facts were brought out in a recent tax report of the Walworth county board compiled from data provided by the state tax commission and the Wisconsin Blue Book for 1921.

Walworth county taxes are low according to the report, though 18 per cent above the average per capita in the state. Taxes are usually considered according to valuation and from that point of view the expenses of Walworth county are 21 per cent less than for the average for the state.

Highway Tax Largest.

"The largest item, of course, is the highway tax, but we are beginning to get good dividends from highway improvements. The weakest point is the appropriation for health and sanitation. Here we are far below the state average, probably the most important work in the county and should be promptly strengthened," Walworth county tax assessments.

Jones, according to Haley, is in Canada, where he had married.

SUPERVISORS TO MEET.

Jackson—the board of supervisors of Jefferson county will meet in annual session Nov. 15.

The Best Cough Syrup is Home-made.

Here's an easy way to save $2, and yet have the best cough remedy you ever tried.

You've probably heard of this well-known plan of making cough syrup at home. But have you ever tried it? It's healthy, nutritious, the world over, and that they could hardly keep house without it. It's simple, and cheap, but the way it takes hold of a cough will soon earn it permanent place in your home.

Take a pint bottle, pour 2½ cups of Phax; then add plain, well-boiled sugar syrup to make the pint. Or, if you prefer, use clarified molasses, honey, or corn syrup instead of sugar syrup. Either way, it tastes good, never spoils, and gives you a full pint of better cough remedy than you could buy ready-made for three times its cost.

It is really wonderful how quickly this home-made remedy conquers a chronic cough in 24 hours or less. It seems to penetrate through every air passage, loosens a dry, hoarse or tight cough, lifts the phlegm, heals the membranes, and gives almost immediate relief. Splendid for throat tickle, hoarseness, cough, bronchitis, and bronchial asthma.

For a highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, and has been used for generations for throat and chest ailments. To avoid disappointment ask your druggist for 2½ ounces of the syrup with directions and do not accept anything else, as it is intended to give absolute satisfaction or money refunded. The assault occurred when Curtis went to his house, which has been unoccupied since his wife left for Florida three weeks ago to spend the winter. Entering, he found a stranger sleeping on a couch.

"What are you doing here?" Curtis inquired.

His answer was a blow on the head with blackjack which rendered him unconscious. When he regained consciousness the room was a mass of flames. He made his way through the smoke and flames and into the front yard, where he fell exhausted.

CONGRESSIONAL DISCIPLINE

BY FREDERIC J. HASKIN

Washington, D. C.—The case of Representative Blanton, who recently was censured, after a resolution of expulsion against him had failed, for the kind of language he caused to be printed in the Congressional Record, seems to be the first of its kind in the history of the United States Congress.

NEWS THAT IS NEWS.

It is about time that one of the biggest news items of the year was printed. In fact to about 110,000,000 people in the United States it will be the largest news event of the year 1921. Christmas will be here on the 25th of December without regard to weather or worry. It is just 47 days away. Do your Christmas shopping early.

It is predicted that the snake crop along the Beloit road will be better when the prohibition agents are less active.

THE UNKNOWN DEAD.

Ships are out at sea this afternoon to meet the Olympia coming from France with a cargo typical of the horror of war. The Olympia may never take another trip across the Atlantic. The old cruiser has served its day and time. It was a great ship on the morning of May 1, 1898, when Dewey stood on the bridge and sailed up the bay of Manila, to unknown terror of battle. "You may fire when you are ready, 'Gibney' spoken to the captain of the ship was the American spirit of that day. There is a coffin on board the Olympia. Its four walls contain the remains of a soldier who fought for America and the peace of all the world and died without a name.

To the fathers and mothers whose son went gallantly down Main street marching away to war, the grief is less keen, less poignant, if when he came to the end of the road, the casualty list told the tale of honorable death. "Missing in action" has ever carried with it the bitterness of uncertainty, and in the tribute paid to the end Unknown Dead, we are laying a wreath on the graves of all. In the great national cemeteries of the Civil War, row upon row of white slabs tell the story of many thousands of men who sleep unidentified and unknown to this day. Somewhere there have been homes of sorrow, somewhere they have been grieves and tears and agony, days of watchfulness, ears attuned to every step, hope deferred but still hope that in some hour the door will open and the lost be restored.

We are reading, the name on some family tombstone:

Alas of the number one green mound they lack!
And under one name we read this, simply known:

"He went to the war and never came back."

And far, far away from all friends and all kindred—

"Neath a desolate mound with green grass overgrown."

He sleeps; a plain headstone, the lonely spot marking.

With the mournful inscription, black-lettered,

"UNKNOWN."

At every home where these tragedies have entered and with bloody hand left the imprint of disaster, there will be hope that the Unknown men by ships out at sea today, tomorrow to be on his own native soil, another day to rest in the capital of his nation, and finally with pomp and ceremony to be laid to rest forever in the memorial tomb at Arlington, shall be the man missing from that fireside. In this there is comfort beyond measure. In that belief one may be willing that the book shall be sealed forever and that final judgment alone shall disclose the name of the Unknown Soldier.

What Chicago said to Marshal Foch was "St. lux, pax quodcumque bonum tibi, hospes amico!"

Just remember that for every divorce granted by the courts there are a hundred or more homes in which happiness reigns and both women and men go about the daily tasks without calling in the police or the neighbors to quell a row. Happiness and comfort and satisfactory home life are so common that they do not get in the papers, that's all.

JUST FOLKS

BY EDGAR A. GUEST

TO THE "TOO MUCH TROUBLE" MEN.
We did, but the things that we wanted to, it's little that most people would ever do. It's little trouble we've always cited. And stopped to rest when our strength was tried, if we never went out of our way or stayed close to our task while our neighbors played. If all that we did was to wear a smile. We'd never accomplish a thing worth while.

Work is the father of all that's good. He gets the fire who will saw the wood. He reaches the top who will have to climb. With his face set upward to the highest post, this you could see in the highest post. He goes to work who has worked the most, he who dodges the trouble here. Is dodging his chance for a greater sphere.

Do it, whatever the task may be.

For it may hold glories you cannot see, what if you're rather late in bed? Or go out during play, instead?

Few of us here on the earth, would go to work if it would to play. And this is the secret of each man's quest—He gets the best who will give his best.

A fellow must earn what his dream demands, must pay for his joy with his brain and hands.

Must bow to trouble and keep his grin. And conquer his whims if he hopes to win. Fortune or glory will never end.

The man of the "too much trouble" kind, for this is the lesson that all must learn—Well get no more than we're glad to earn.

Smartest youth in all the village was young Hiram Tate.

And it was indeed a pleasure to hear him relate

All the details of the offer that he got each day.

And how he had turned them down, demanding higher pay.

Many lucrative positions fell unto his lot.

Some folks said that they believed him, other folks did not.

Once he went down to the city, never to return.

Stayed away about three days as far as we can learn,

Once young Hiram went a trooping with a regular show.

And he stayed away from home about a week or so.

Then he got a fine position, clerkin' in a store, and he lasted; so they tell me, seven days, no more.

He thought they'd never lose him, till one fatigued day.

When he up and wif his sweetheart and they moved away.

That's the time he broke the record. First time in his life.

Slayed away a month and then came home and brought his wife.

Who's Who Today

JUDGE CORDELL HULL.

Cordell Hull, newly elected chairman of the Democratic national committee, is probably best known as the author of the legislative measure which affected more persons directly than any other law ever passed by congress. He is the man who wrote the federal income tax law in 1913.

Hull was born in Overton county (now Picket), Tenn., October 2, 1871. He attended the National Normal school in Nashville, Tenn., and then went to the Lebanon, Tenn., law school. He was admitted to the bar in 1891. He began practicing in Celina, Tenn., and quickly got into politics, going to the state legislature from that district. He was appointed judge of probate of Franklin county in 1900. Four years later he was elected to the U. S. congress and served until defeated for re-election to the house last year in the overwhelming landslide of the Republicans. He was considered for the chairmanship of the Democrats last year when Homer S. Cummings retired, but George White was chosen finally. Hull now succeeds White. His home is in Cartage, Tenn.

During the same Congress one B. Franklin Whittemore of South Carolina was accused of accepting pecuniary consideration for appointments to both the Military and Naval Academies. While a resolution of expulsion was pending, Mr. Whittemore resigned his seat. Despite the fact that he was no longer a Member of the Congress, the House passed a censory resolution on February 24th, 1920. Whittemore sought to clear up his record by being re-elected to Congress. He succeeded in his campaign, but the House refused to let him be seated, so his efforts went for nothing.

During the Fifty-sixth Congress the House was faced with the dilemma of approving of polygamy or refusing to seat a duly elected Member.

This man was Brigham H. Roberts, of Utah, a Mormon who avowedly had three wives. It was pointed out in his defense that these wives were taken entirely legally and under the sanction of the Mormon Church before that church prohibited polygamy. Mr. Roberts was refused a seat by the other Members of the House. The vote occurred on January 25, 1900.

There are two other older cases. One concerns O. B. Matteson of New York, who resigned from Congress on February 27th, 1857, pending a resolution of expulsion based on the charge that Matteson had incited the corrupt spending of money to secure passage of a measure before the Congress.

On the same date W. A. Gilbert, of New York, resigned his seat. He was about to face a resolution of expulsion because he had accepted seven square miles of land for casting his vote in favor of the passage of the Iowa land bill.

There have been resignations and expulsions from the Senate also, and some resolutions of censure. All of the cases enumerated here have to do with the lower branch of Congress.

SMOKE ASPHYXIA.

Asphyxia, my dear children, is one of those confused or confusing words derived from the ancient Greek means without pulmonary respiration—oxygen shortage—and I command to Prof. Henderson's attention of breathing which is associated with smoking. What I mean by those who like to smoke cigarettes and show off, knows that asphyxia means smothering.

Smokers who are overcome by smoke suffer with asphyxia. They are poisoned by carbon monoxide gas in the smoke. This carbon monoxide is the poison element in illuminating gas, in the exhaust from an automobile, from furnaces, etc.

According to my poor understanding, it is perhaps what kills off so many smokers prematurely—oxygen shortage—and I command to Prof. Henderson's attention of breathing which is associated with smoking.

CHAPTER LXIX.
COLIN COMES
In the end it was kind of Ellen's tactlessness, for it broke down the barrier between us. She came more frequently, and there was a sincerity in our friendship now that had been absent before.

"I feel I can't treat her. So one day when she asked me suddenly why I had not lived with Mrs. Taylor, why I had taken a place to myself, I told her,

"Somehow I can't stand her house. It makes me restless!" I said. "It's so full of useless things. I am always stepping over footstools, or tripping over rugs, or bumping into little tables and shelves and舞and waste money and sit about with people that are boringly tiresome. Is that?"

Ellen interrupted with a brief laugh. "I can't blame you, but that is it," she said. "After all, what did you want? You said everything. You were young and pretty and everyone envied you."

"Another woman, of course," she said bitterly. "I guess there's always another woman or found that out too."

I fairly winced, but said nothing. Ellen's voice had been serious, she gave no more details about it. Win had not been that sort. Win had phrased about, flirted, played at an affection he did not feel for the other women talked sentimental nonsense and held hands like a school boy—but there was none of this. Win was genuinely fascinated by Gwen, fascinated by the fact that she was a part in his life, but that was all Ellen's story, one of serious transgressions.

"So she came to me and asked my to give him up," she finished her story. "And I was so sorry—for the poor stupid little thing. I did—besides, I was mad at him, and hurt! I wish I hadn't now!"

"But surely you—would you want to marry him, knowing all that?" I asked in surprise. "If it went on before it must—after."

"I guess all men are the same," Ellen ended up. It was the calm, cold tone of complete disillusionment. "I know a lot about the people here, and I guess after all, he wasn't any worse than the rest of them. Now I'll be old maid. In two years more I'll be a complete back number, no one will look at me. I have to begin doing charity work like the old maids and mothers of the town."

I sat silent.

"We all have our tragedies," I said finally. "If yours is not marrying mine is in having married the wrong one. Though Win isn't at least he isn't the wrong one for me—I care a lot. He doesn't."

We had been drawn so closely together by her secret confession that mine was naturally. Ellen forgot herself and acted more about it.

I tried to go over it.

"It wasn't anything except that we were always at opposite sides of every question that came up. I did not like the people he liked, he didn't like those I did. He liked people who talked as though they were very smart and well informed; and I liked people who were shallow, that they managed to have a surface coating of cleverness when there was nothing beneath."

"I liked people who tried to make something of themselves, who wore

Dinner Stories

A negro employed at one of the California cinema studios was chosen to take part in a comedy scene with a lion.

"You get into this bed," ordered the producer, "and we'll bring the lion and put him in bed with you. It will be funny."

"Put a lion in bed with me!" yelled the darky. "No, sah! Not at all. I quits right here and now."

"But," protested the producer, "this lion won't hurt you. It was brought up on milk."

"So was I brung up on milk," wailed the darky, "but I eats meat now."

An elaborately dressed woman got into a smoking compartment just as the train was moving. A few minutes later she informed a man who was smoking a pipe that she would be obliged if he would not smoke.

"Do you object to the smell of tobacco, ma'am?" he inquired politely.

"Yes," she said emphatically.

"Well," he replied, with a laugh. "I'm sorry, but as it happens I object to the smell of scent—so we are quits."

Mrs. Smith was on her first ocean voyage.

"What's that down there?" she asked the captain.

"That's the steamer madame," he replied.

"Really!" exclaimed the woman in surprise. "And does it take all those people to make the boat go straight?"

Blue Squad Honor Guests of Rotary Club Wednesday

LEADING MEN OF CITY BACK TEAM FOR MORE LAURELS

In due recognition of the manner in which the Janesville high school football squad has brought honor and glory back to their colors after a lapse of some 10 years, the Rotary club of this city will entertain the boys at the Grand hotel at noon Wednesday. Elaborate preparations are being made to give the boys a rough time.

While it is an important step in the history of high school athletics in this city to have the team rated, the outstanding fact is the wonderful manner in which the business men of the city are taking interest of the game at heart. They are supporting the eleven not only by the purchase of tickets as in other years, but by getting out to the games and rooting along with the student body.

Wednesday's occasion will be another step toward the homecoming celebration to be held next day, the day of the Beloit game, Nov. 19. The Rotarians are to cooperate with the Kiwanis club, the Father and Son week program and the student body in making it an event to be remembered.

Monday night, the Lakota club moved behind the Homecoming movement and appointed a committee to cooperate with those already at work. The newest suggestion to come to the city is an alumni banquet the night of Nov. 19 with the team as the guests.

Title! Title!
All Want Title!

Extra Superior Central "is prepared to defend its state title against either La Crosse or Marquette."

Here's another: "By defeating Oconto Saturday, 65 to 7, Marquette clinched the high school championship of Wisconsin."

All right who's next? It's everybody's privilege to have his blow. Because the defeated Madison last year, 40 to 7, Superior claims the 1920 title and goes on to state that she has the right to hold it until doomsday unless she is defeated. It must not be forgotten that East Green Bay had an equally strong team a year ago and defeated Appleton decisively, while Superior won by only one point from Appleton.

Says La Crosse: "The Wisconsin Interscholastic Athletic Association has been criticized because of the fact that a champion rarely is decisively chosen. The neighboring states definitely pick a champion at the end of the season; some method ought to be employed to this end."

From Superior comes the following:

"The Best!"

"Superior Central is prepared to defend its state high school football championship on home grounds November 14, a week from next Saturday, according to an announcement by the management of the local club. Superior's opponent will probably be La Crosse or Milwaukee. The two-covered teams rated as the best outside of Superior play in elimination games next Saturday."

"For a number of years down-staters have been doing the dictating to Superior. The local team journeyed to La Crosse, Eau Claire, Madison and elsewhere to play champion games. Now it is high time that our period gets one of the games and we hope to hold the champion ship contenders must come here if the 1921 honors are to be decided."

"With the Head of the Lakes conference schedule ended Superior has no game for next Saturday and will rest up for the championship game. All aboard for the Wisconsin 'prop' title. Tickets cost nothing but the desire to make a claim."

ELKHORN DEFEATS DEAF SCHOOL, 19-0

(By Gazette Correspondent) Elkhorn, Wis.—Elkhorn high school defeated the State School for the Deaf at Delavan Saturday, 19 to 0. On Sunday, the Beloit Indians trimmed the Elkhorn American Legion, 16 to 0.

MARQUETTE PREPS FOR NOTRE DAME

Milwaukee.—With the game with North Dakota four days hence and the all important game with Notre Dame less than two weeks away, Coach Jack Ryan instituted a program of individual coaching on the Hilltop on Monday which is planned will put the team at the height of its form when it faces the Hoosiers a week from Saturday.

NOTRE DAME PLAYS RUTGERS TUESDAY

New York.—Fresh from its decisive victory over the Army eleven at West Point, Notre Dame's football squad was in New York Tuesday, for a clash with Rutgers at the polo grounds.

$10,000 FIRE LOSS ON ILLINOIS FARM

Shirley Hill—Ten thousand dollars damage is estimated to have been done by the fire which destroyed the large barn, cattle sheds and straw stacks on the Dr. S. E. Savage farm near here Monday.

Lakotas Join in Plans for J. H. S. Homecoming Day

Members of the Lakota club are up to the winning Janesville high school football team of local fame and endorsed plans for a Homecoming celebration on the day of the Janesville-Beloit game, Nov. 19, in a resolution presented by Victor E. Hemming passed unanimously by the club Monday night.

The resolution called upon the president, Roy Merrick, to appoint a committee to cooperate with high school authorities, students, alumni and other clubs in arranging for the homecoming. The planning committee was named: Robert Cunningham, chairman; Dr. Gerald K. Woold and George Sherman.

This committee will meet representatives of other organizations and Supt. F. O. Holt to complete the arrangements. The Rotary and Kiwanis clubs have volunteered to have the band out and a movement is on foot to have the town decorated in the school colors blue and white. A大规模的游行 is being planned by the committee to arouse enthusiasm for the homecoming game.

Other business of the Lakota club Monday night was of a routine nature. George Bennett, general chairman for the club's Christmas party, announced for Dec. 26 and negotiations are under way with several orchestras. Plans for a roller skating party in January were discussed but no action was taken.

Cigars were smoked on Ralph Kamp and Harry C. Bostwick, two Lakota newlyweds, and a buffet lunch was served.
